

Beyond MCAS:

Excellence and Equity in the Brookline Schools

- What is MCAS? Is it required?
- What is the opt-out movement?
- How has the MCAS changed public education in Brookline?
- What are the facts about MCAS and equity?
- Does the MCAS enrich our children's experience in the schools?
- Does my child really need to practice taking standardized tests?

Hear Jeanette Deutermann, Ricardo Rosa and Brookline educators address these questions.

Tuesday, January 30 | 7 to 8:30 p.m.

All Saints Parish | 1773 Beacon Street at Dean Road

Come at 6:30 for light refreshments. Child care available (please RSVP online).

Please save the snow date, too: Tuesday, February 6, same place and hour.

Jeanette Deutermann is a mother of two boys and is the founder of Long Island Opt-Out, a movement for whole-child education in New York State public schools.

Ricardo D. Rosa, Ph.D., is an associate professor in the Department of Educational Leadership at the University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth, a teacher in New Bedford, and an activist, writer and researcher working with youth.

To RSVP or learn more, please visit www.ourbrooklineschools.org

Sponsored by the Alliance for Brookline Schools